Agnew Leads Throng At Allen Dulles Rites

By United Press International

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and hundreds of other past and present government officials attended funeral services yesterday for Allen W. Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, who was eulogized as a "trusted figure on the American ramparts."

Private burial services followed in Baltimore for Dulles, who died Wednesday at age 75.

Agnew represented President Nixon at the final rites at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church. Nixon was prevented from attending because of a day-long meeting with the National Security Council but he sent a wreath of red and white carnations.

The Rev. Russell C. Stroup described Dulles in the funeral sermon as a Christian gentleman in the patrician tradition of Thomas Jefferson.

"In the midst of personal tragedy and public disaster he stood firm," Mr. Stroup said. "He was the chief architect of a new kind of protection devised for the free world."

Among those attending the service were Sens. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky and Clifford P. Case of New Jersey, and former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, now president of the World Bank.

Others were the British ambassador, Sir Patrick Dean; Frank Corner, for New Zealand; Sir Keith and Lady Waller, for Australia; Mr. and Mrs. A. Edgar Richee for Canada; and U. Alexis Johnson, for the State Department.

The widow, Mrs. Clover Todd Dulles, was accompanied by Richard Helms, present director of the Central Intelligence Agency, which Dulles headed for nearly seven years.
